You may browse the websites by topic but the journal webpages are not very user friendly.

The easiest way I have found to search for articles is to use Google Scholar. The following example illustrates how to search for articles within Journal of Chinese Medicine. The same principle works for searching for articles within European Journal of Oriental Medicine:

Step 1

!Google Scholar search interface

Click on the arrow to the right of the Google Scholar Search box for the Advanced Search

- Articles (include patents)
- Case law

Step 2

!Advanced search interface

Type your keywords in these boxes

This search will retrieve some results from The American Journal of Chinese Medicine but this offers an alternative way of searching which you may find easier than using the Journal’s own website.

A similar search in Google Scholar using the journal title “European Journal of Oriental Medicine” retrieves articles from that journal only.